RETRO

Dinnerware

from The Homer Laughlin China Co.

What's buzzin', cousin?

It's sometime between the late 1940s and the mid-to-late 50s. Route 66 was in its heyday. The style was ... futuristic. It was an unapologetically artistic type of world.

Homer Laughlin was there. We created of-the-moment patterns that were just as likely to be set on tables in an off-highway diner as in an upscale coffee shop or bistro.

Many restaurants today are fighting to regain character on the table, pushing back on the all-white tabletop and the minimalist message it conveys.

Patterns and colors are back. And with them, Retro patterns are being pulled back to the table.

At Homer Laughlin we like to say, "Who better to lead the Retro charge than those who CREATED it!"

CURRENT RETRO

These are patterns that have never gone away. They are the Retro patterns for which demand has always persisted.
